The same or similar characters have the same or similar shape and form, in the same words in documents purportedly originating from different sources. See, for example:

- the mixture of very highly developed Rykaa laam - miim combination and underdeveloped Naskh counter-clockwise initial connected miim.
- the formation of the character kaaf, the position of its horizontal stroke, and its attachment to the following character raa
- the formation of the head and tail of the miim as well as the position of the character in its terminal independent form
